

Stališča prebivalstva kot odraz novih trendov v starševstvu in podlaga za preoblikovanje družinske politike v Sloveniji

The research gave insight into the perception of the father's role among the population of Slovenia, and into attitudes towards achieving more equal engagement of both parents in taking care of children. The attitudes towards justification and effectiveness of individual measures were studied as well. Preferences and most favoured measures for reconciliation of professional and family duties were identified. The results of the Slovenian survey were compared to those obtained in another 13 European countries.
