

Red Tape, Red Line: five reasons why government should not 'drop its duty' to tackle women's inequality

In response to the government's review of the Public Sector Equality Duty (PSED), launched in 2013, this reports sets out five reasons why government should not “drop their duty” to tackle women’s inequality and five things they could do to ensure the Equality Duty is more effective in achieving its aims.

Format: pdf-file

Weblinks

PDF

Metadata

TYPE: Publication

CREATOR/AUTHOR: Fawcett Society

PUBLISHER: London: Fawcett Society

LANGUAGE: English

COVERAGE: UK

SECTOR: Employment

FORMAT: Other - text

KEYWORDS: intimate partner violence/domestic violence, equality between women and men, equality dimension, equal opportunities, equal pay, equal treatment, gender equality, gender gap, gender impact assessment, gender mainstreaming, gender pay differential, gender pay-gap, paid work