

Data collection on intimate partner violence by the police and justice sectors: Ireland

The infographic features a header with the EIGE logo and the title. Below the title is a photograph of a woman in a white lab coat, possibly a lawyer or doctor, with a scale of justice in the foreground. The main content is divided into two columns. The left column is titled 'Why do we need administrative data on intimate partner violence?' and contains several paragraphs of text. The right column is titled 'The European Institute for Gender Equality (EIGE) defines intimate partner violence as all acts of physical, sexual, psychological or economic violence that occur between former or current spouses or partners, whether or not the perpetrator shares or has shared the same residence with the victim. It constitutes a form of violence which affects women disproportionately and which is therefore distinctly gendered.' Below this text are two donut charts. The first chart is titled 'In Ireland, 45% of women have been victims of serious intimate partner violence in their lifetime' and shows a blue segment representing 45%. The second chart is titled 'Only 29% of these victims contacted the police' and shows a blue segment representing 29%. At the bottom, there is a small text block with a URL: 'https://www.eige.europa.eu/publications/data-collection-on-intimate-partner-violence-by-the-police-and-justice-sectors-ireland'.

Many women victims of intimate partner violence in the EU Member States remain unprotected. Perpetrators often go unpunished due to inadequate law enforcement approaches, which do not align with international human rights treaties. A gender-neutral approach to the law, coupled with the unavailability of data and existing stereotypes result in the denial of violence against women and its tolerance or normalisation. States must ensure that they carry out the due diligence principle to investigate and punish acts of violence and provide compensation to victims. Improving data collection and providing comprehensive and reliable administrative data is crucial to monitor the police and justice sectors' response to violence against women.

Read more

Data collection on intimate partner violence by the police and justice sectors - all EU countries →

Indicators on intimate partner violence and rape for the police and justice sectors →

EIGE's work on data collection on violence against women →

---

Downloads

 Data collection on intimate partner violence by the police and justice sectors: Ireland
EN (PDF, 641.67 KB)

---

Metadata

COUNTRY: Ireland

AREAS: Data collection on violence against women, Gender-based violence

AUTHOR: EIGE

ISBN: 978-92-9470-333-0

DOI: 10.2839/559809