

Grey literature on poverty

The screenshot shows a webpage with an orange header. The main title is 'Grey literature on poverty'. Below the title, there are several text blocks and an image. The text blocks discuss the definition of grey literature, the relevance of gender in poverty, the EIGE library's collection, and poverty as a consequence of gender discrimination. An image shows hands holding a small, dark, folded object. A 'Reading list' box is also visible at the bottom right of the page.

Gender differences and inequalities between women and men are a major feature of social exclusion and poverty. A range of interrelated factors explain this, namely: the gender pay and pension gap, care burden/work–life balance, social exclusion and violence against women. Women suffer more than men from certain types of poverty. Even more at risk are women living alone, migrant women, elderly women and women with disabilities.
