Additional information: There are no validating procedures so far; basically the statistical product is Number of victims of domestic violence; this number is aggregated from the number of victims register with each DGASPC ((social protection services for victims); in its turn DGASPC does not have a validating procedure for the data it collects from local level SPAS (social Protection and Social Assistance Services in each mayor's office) and NGOs

Compilation

Statistical product is: Number of victims of domestic violence. This number is aggregated from the number of victims register with each DGASPC ((social protection services for victims); in its turn DGASPC does not have a validating procedure for the data it collects from local level SPAS (social Protection and Social Assistance Services in each mayor's office) and NGOs; The total number of victims of domestic violence (produced by Child Protection Direction within the MLFSPE) is based only on the DGASPC reported cases and does not aggregate data from other institutions that collect data and some even provide statistical products with reference to victims of domestic violence (such as the General Prosecutor's Office, The Superior Council of Magistrates, the Police or The National Institute for Public Health).

Current developments

At Ministerial level there is an interest in developing an electronic system of data registration, data collection and statistics but funding is difficult to secure and so far the focus of the administrative institution in charge with DV used to be a different one; understaffing is often invoked as well as the lack of expertise; also DV is not perceived to be a priority; furthermore data collection is also not a priority in fund allocation; mostly service provision and educational/awareness raising campaigns are deemed a priority; data collection falls into developing administrative capacity and for now no funds are available;
