

Article in the code of conduct about non-discrimination

Art.27 of the code states that 'A journalist including information such as ethnic background, skin colour, and sexual orientation must avoid stereotyping, generalisations, and exaggeration and must not incite discrimination.' The Code is published on the website www.rvdj.be and annual reports are published on the website www.rvdj.be

Weblinks

PDF

Aims and objectives

- To establish a code of conduct for journalists and editors - To provide a tool for the general public to file a complaint

Results and impact

There is no monitor or other form of data collection that ensures information on the implementation of the code. An annual report does provide insights into the complaints that have been filed for that year.

Creator/owner/responsible institution

Raad voor de Journalistiek

Stakeholder, Firstname: Flip

Stakeholder, Family name: Voets

Additional information

Subtype: Codes of conduct which safeguard gender equality

Nuts code: BE2

Metadata

ONGOING: No

TYPE: Self-regulation tool

COVERAGE: Regional

TARGET GROUP: General population, Media professionals

KEYWORDS: codes of conduct, journalism, media professionals, press, production of information, representation