

Database of expert women contributors

In the past RTÉ had a database of expert women contributors which was used by various programmes. Since it has gone out of date/print, it has been the responsibility of programme editors and management to make sure that women are fairly represented. This happens on an ad hoc basis and cannot always prevent unfair representation, yet the database experience made the top level realise that the principle of equal representation should be adhered to whenever possible. RTE is now developing a software package to support fairness in representation of various categories of contributors generally.

Weblinks

Website

Aims and objectives

- To ensure access of female experts to radio and tv programmes

Results and impact

Not yet evaluated

Creator/owner/responsible institution

Raidió Teilifís Éireann (RTE) - Ireland's National Television and Radio Broadcaster

Stakeholder, Firstname: Joseph

Stakeholder, Family name: Hoban

Additional information

Subtype: Other tool for monitoring access of women to expression: experts database

Nuts code: IE

Metadata

ONGOING: No

TYPE: Database

COVERAGE: National

TARGET GROUP: Others, Media professionals

KEYWORDS: media professionals, access to expression, women's participation