

---

Determinants of work-family policies in postcommunist countries

The dissertation explores the development of work-family policies in three postcommunist countries, the Czech Republic, Croatia and Slovenia. The dissertation point to essential differences in the development of work-family policies in particular postcommunist countries, as well as to the fact that these development paths have been determined by simultaneous effects of socio-economic, political and cultural factors specific for each country.

Format: pdf-file

---

Weblinks

PDF

---

Metadata

TYPE: Study / Survey

CREATOR/AUTHOR: Dobrotić, Ivana

PUBLISHER: Ljubljana : Faculty of Social Studies

RIGHTS: Copyrighted

LANGUAGE: Slovenian

COVERAGE: Croatia, Slovenia, the Czech Republic

SECTOR: Employment

FORMAT: Other - text

KEYWORDS: reconciliation of work and family, parental leave, child care, flexibility of working time, gender analysis, part-time employment, division of labour, gender distribution of paid and unpaid work, homework, equality between women and men

