

Women's Representations in Cyprus Television Productions: Endorsements, Reversals, and (Persisting) Annihilations

The paper examined the representations of women in Cyprus in some Cyprus dialect comedy productions. It concludes that 'the dominant masculine, social ideology, which exists about genders and their relationships..... is not really being overthrown or even subverted in the least, in Cyprus television productions. It is sustained politically through the media, and the public sphere...' Endorsements and reversals of stereotypes and in projected ideologies undermine the status of women in Cypriot society and strengthens the disempowerment of Cypriot women.

Key information on trends and challenges on women and the media:

Gendered stereotypes

Key stakeholders mentioned:

broadcast media

Related title/resource:

Weblinks

PDF

Metadata

TYPE: Publication

CREATOR/AUTHOR: Rousou, Nayia

LANGUAGE: English

COVERAGE: Cyprus

KEYWORDS: gender stereotypes