

Women's position in the print media

The thesis of a practicing female journalist aims to explore women's role in the Hungarian print media by presenting a historical overview of women's position in the media as well as by analyzing the results of a self-conducted survey among 119 female journalists. The questions are aimed at evaluating the journalists' opinions of the professional and private aspects of their own situation from a gendered point of view. Although the analysis of the results rarely questions the validity of the interviewed journalists' self-perception, the thesis manages to give a valuable insight into the gendered aspects of journalists' work.

Format: 77 p.

Weblinks

Website

Metadata

TYPE: Publication

CREATOR/AUTHOR: Polgár, Ágnes

PUBLISHER: Szeged: University of Szeged

RIGHTS: Property of author

LANGUAGE: Hungarian

KEYWORDS: journalism, participation of women, print