

The effect of job displacement on couples' fertility decisions

This paper analyzes the effects of job displacement on fertility using Finnish longitudinal employer-employee data (FLEED) matched to birth records. We distinguish between male and female job losses. We focus on couples where one spouse has lost his/her job due to a plant closure or mass layoff and follow them for several years both before and following the job loss.

Format: pdf-file

Weblinks

PDF

Metadata

TYPE: Other

CREATOR/AUTHOR: Kristiina Huttunen, Aalto University, Helsinki; and Jenni Kellokumpu, University of Jyväskylä, Jyväskylä

LANGUAGE: English

COVERAGE: Finland

SECTOR: Employment

FORMAT: Website

KEYWORDS: fertility, employment