
Machbarkeitsstudie Gender Budgeting auf Bundesebene

The feasibility study provides a definition of gender budgeting, assesses the situation regarding gender budgeting in Germany and presents a draft model for a testing phase with the aim of implementing gender budgeting in the future. The federal government commented that despite the information provided in the feasibility study some crucial points still need clarification. In November 2012 the federal government stated that gender budgeting is not considered a suitable tool to support the work towards gender equality.
