

A Guide to Creating Gender-Sensitive Health Services

Drawing on the models already in place internationally, this document aims to act as a guide to creating and implementing gender sensitive health services in Ireland. Looking to the excellent example that has been set by Australia, Canada and Sweden, extensive reference to the models of best practice in these countries has been included in this guide. Case studies on mental health and cardiovascular disease have also been included to demonstrate the gendered nature of health in an Irish context.
