

In the midst of the media; more journalist women

The study looks at the power of women to influence decision-making in the media. The reason for this study is due to the increased inflow of women working in the media (in comparison to the 1980s). The researcher posed the question whether this has also translated into more influence. The definition of media for the purpose of this study has been reduced to journalism specifically.

Key information on trends and challenges on women and the media:

The study focuses on the status quo and obstacles to access to decision-making in the media for women.

Key stakeholders mentioned:

Media focused on news and opinions (newspaper and TV)

Format: pdf; 53 p.

Weblinks

Website

Metadata

TYPE: Publication

CREATOR/AUTHOR: Merens, Ans

PUBLISHER: The Hague: Sociaal en Cultureel Planbureau

IDENTIFIER: ISBN: 90-377-0130-2

LANGUAGE: Dutch

COVERAGE: Netherlands

KEYWORDS: participation of women, access to expression