

New labour dynamics and the challenge of work-life balance

The article focuses the patterns of women's employment, including working time flexibility and the high incidence of temporary work in Portugal, discussing the implications for women in terms of the organisation of their family life. The main argument is that flexible working time schedules not only have ambiguous (and even contradictory) effects on gender relations; they also originate difficulties in work-family life balance and reinforce social inequalities among women.

Format: pdf-file and printed, 21 pages

Bibliographic Citation: Casaca, Sara Falcão (2013), "As novas dinâmicas laborais e os desafios da articulação com a vida familiar", Sociologia, Problemas e Práticas, 72: 31-52

Weblinks

PDF

Metadata

TYPE: Publication

CREATOR/AUTHOR: Casaca, Sara Falcão

PUBLISHER: Sociologia, Problemas e Práticas

LANGUAGE: Portuguese

COVERAGE: Portugal

SECTOR: Employment

FORMAT: Other - text

KEYWORDS:

reconciliation of work and employment, precarious employment, flexibility of working time, family