

Women and news: A long and winding road

There have been some positive improvements in women's representation as news actors, sources and journalists in the British and Irish news media since the first GMMP day of monitoring in 1995, women's voices, experiences and expertise continue to be regarded by news industries as less important than those of men. Such a situation undermines and under-reports women's contribution to social, economic and cultural life and in so doing, diminishes democracy.
