

Gender Equality in Academia and Research

Project Crocodile – University of New Caledonia (FR)

TYPE OF ORGANISATION: University

HORIZON EUROPE GEP ACTION FIELD: Training

COUNTRY: France

In 2019, the University of New Caledonia set up an exhibition on gender-based violence. Called “Project Crocodile”, it was based on cartoon drawings of situations encountered by young women. It also made and disseminated a film of visitors’ reactions that was widely disseminated, mobilised in a further event, and used for training. The objective was to have the issue widely debated and to improve the worrying gender-based situation locally. The University has since mobilised various art forms to create a reaction every International Women’s Day (8 March).
