

Combating violence against women: Denmark

Combating violence against women
DENMARK

NON. NO. NEIN. Say No! Stop violence against women

Violence against women is rooted in women's unequal status in society, and that status reflects the unbalanced distribution of social, political, and economic power among women and men in society. It is one of the most pervasive human rights violations of our time and a form of discrimination that results in, or is likely to result in, physical, sexual, psychological or economic harm or suffering to women (1). Violence against women undermines women's dignity and integrity and imposes serious harms on families, communities and societies. In the EU, estimates suggest that 1 in 3 women (or 61 million out of 185 million) have experienced physical or sexual violence, or both, since the age of 15 (2).

The full extent of violence against women is difficult to estimate, as it continues to be underreported and unreported, meaning that what actually gets reported is only a fraction of the reality. In Denmark, over 90% of the population tend to trust the police (3).

In EIGE's Gender Equality Index 2015 it was found that where people tend to have more trust in justice institutions, levels of disclosed violence are higher (4). It is estimated that in Denmark, 52% of women have experienced violence, which is 7% higher than in the EU overall (5).

The European Institute for Gender Equality has estimated that the cost of intimate partner violence against women in Denmark could amount to EUR 1.2 billion per year. This figure was calculated according to the methodology used in EIGE's 2014 study (6), which Member States can replicate, as done by Estonia in 2016 (7).

Violence against women is rooted in women's unequal status in society, and that status reflects the unbalanced distribution of social, political, and economic power among women and men in society. It is one of the most pervasive human rights violations of our time and a form of discrimination that results in, or is likely to result in, physical, sexual, psychological or economic harm or suffering to women.

Further information

Press release: Lighting the way for change - Ending violence against women

More about EIGE's work on gender-based violence

Downloads

Combating violence against women: Denmark

EN (PDF, 411.34 KB)

Bekæmpelse af vold mod kvinder: DANMARK

DA (PDF, 418.43 KB)

Metadata

COUNTRY: Denmark

AREAS: Violence Against Women: country factsheets, Gender-based violence

AUTHOR: EIGE

ISBN: 978-92-9493-459-8

DOI: 10.2839/92120