

Data collection on intimate partner violence by the police and justice sectors: Netherlands

Data collection on intimate partner violence by the police and justice sectors
The Netherlands

Why do we need administrative data on intimate partner violence?

Many women victims of intimate partner violence in the EU Member States remain unprotected. Perpetrators often go unpunished due to inadequate law enforcement approaches, which do not align with international human rights treaties. A gender-neutral approach to the law, coupled with the unavailability of data and existing stereotypes result in the denial of violence against women and its tolerance or normalisation. States must ensure that they carry out the due diligence principle to investigate and punish acts of violence and provide compensation to victims. Improving data collection and understanding performance and reliable administrative data is crucial to monitor the police and justice sector's response to violence against women. It also shows a state's willingness to monitor the effectiveness of its law. High quality administrative data is in line with the international commitments of Member States to combat violence against women as defined in Directive 2011/36/EU of the Victims Rights Directive and the Istanbul Convention.

The European Institute for Gender Equality (EIGE) defines intimate partner violence as all acts of physical, sexual, psychological or economic violence that occur between former or current spouses or partners, whether or not the perpetrator shares or has shared the same residence with the victim. It constitutes a form of violence which affects women disproportionately and which is therefore distinctly gendered.

2021 definition of intimate partner violence is in line with the definition of domestic violence of the Istanbul Convention.

23% of women have been victims of violence in the Netherlands, more than the EU27 average. Around half of them were sexually abused or sexually harassed.

Amongst all the victims who were victims of intimate partner violence, 25% contacted the police.

Source: EIGE, in collaboration with the Dutch Ministry of Justice, Security and Law Enforcement (2021).

Many women victims of intimate partner violence in the EU Member States remain unprotected. Perpetrators often go unpunished due to inadequate law enforcement approaches, which do not align with international human rights treaties. A gender-neutral approach to the law, coupled with the unavailability of data and existing stereotypes result in the denial of violence against women and its tolerance or normalisation.

States must ensure that they carry out the due diligence principle to investigate and punish acts of violence and provide compensation to victims. Improving data collection and providing comprehensive and reliable administrative data is crucial to monitor the police and justice sectors' response to violence against women.

Read more

Data collection on intimate partner violence by the police and justice sectors - all EU countries

Indicators on intimate partner violence and rape for the police and justice sectors

EIGE's work on data collection on violence against women

Downloads

Data collection on intimate partner violence by the police and justice sectors: Netherlands

EN (PDF, 640.53 KB)

Metadata

COUNTRY: Netherlands

AREAS: Data collection on violence against women, Gender-based violence

AUTHOR: EIGE

ISBN: 978-92-9470-338-5

DOI: 10.2839/881488